

Caveat--take anything you read on the web with a LARGE with a grain of salt. Read multiple, reputable sources and talk to experienced local beekeepers.

Podcasts

1. The Beekeeper's Corner (<http://www.bkcorner.org>)--a very good podcast from a veteran beekeeper in New Jersey.
2. The Kiwimana Buzz (<http://kiwimana.co.nz/category/podcast>)--interesting podcast from two beekeepers from West Auckland, New Zealand. They have guests from all over, so it's not just a New Zealand thing. It is interesting to hear them talk about their seasons, as they are completely opposite of ours in the Northern Hemisphere.

Web Forums

1. The Practical Beekeeper (<http://www.bushfarms.com/bees.htm>)
2. Beesource.com

Instructional/Webinars

1. UT Agricultural Extension Beekeeping website (<http://bees.tennessee.edu>). I can't say enough good about this site. It has a lot of good information, as well as a link to the UT Extension, where you can submit questions to the UT Entomology Department. I have had good response time whenever I've submitted questions.
2. The Ohio State University Bee Lab (<http://u.osu.edu/beelab/>). I don't have as much experience with this site, but they have a lot of good information as well as frequent and archived webinars with all kinds of good information. For instance, the March 18, 2015 webinar is entitled, "Gardening for Beekeepers" by Denise Ellsworth of Ohio State.
